Miller family holds vigil marking second month of Dartmouth woman's disappearance

Catherine "Catie" Miller HANDOUT

Terry Miller took a deep breath before beginning to sing into the microphone on Dartmouth's Alderney Landing boardwalk, strumming a guitar as the sunset turned distant clouds orange and pink.

On Tuesday evening, Miller performed Kris Kristofferson's One Day at a Time, which she called her personal theme song, during a candlelight vigil to mark the second month her daughter Catherine "Catie" Miller has been missing.

"May the bonds of love and concern that we build this evening reach out to her," Terry read as part of a prayer, brushing away tears.

Miller, 29, was last heard from on July 15 when she texted from her Dartmouth apartment and called a cab. Her family has held multiple poster campaigns in an effort to cover the north Dartmouth area where Miller lived, as well as raise awareness across the country.

"It's extremely stressful, and we want Catie to be safe and sound," her father John Miller said before the vigil where musical groups performed and Rev. Ida Whitehouse spoke about supporting the Miller family.

He said he's been counselled to continue speaking out if he wants to, but also pull back when he feels burned out.

"Maintain energy for the long haul, because this has already taken much longer than I thought it would take," he said.

He's also not worried people are becoming desensitized to the story because volunteers recently putting up posters in Dartmouth had people stop to say they were surprised Catie was still missing.

After going through Catie's apartment, John said he recently noticed things like a fresh batch of cookies left on the kitchen counter with a mixing bowl, and the patio door left open, which suggest she was planning on returning home.

Halifax Regional Police spokesman Const. Pierre Bourdages said Tuesday the case is still an active missing person investigation but there have been no new developments since a phone was turned into police in August. HALEY RYAN/METRO

Man found lying on road dies in hospital

A 48-year-old South Maitland man found bleeding from the head on a Nova Scotia roadway has died, and police say they are still trying to determine what led to his injuries.

On Saturday, RCMP in Enfield were tipped off about a man lying on Highway 215 in South Maitland around 3:15 p.m. They believe he had been a passenger in a vehicle.

"We're trying to determine the sequence of events," said RCMP spokesman Sgt. Alain LeBlanc on Tuesday.

"Is this a tragic accident or was it a criminal act? It's too early to tell."

The victim, Arnold Frederick Hubley, was airlifted to the QEII hospital in Halifax in critical condition. Police say he died on Monday night.

The vehicle he was in has been recovered, and LeBlanc says police have spoken to a few people and the investigation is continuing.

Anyone with information is asked to contact police or Crime Stoppers.

Church officials turned over the results of their internal investigation, which included a forensic audit, and police pursued the matter. James was arrested July 18.

Although it was the arson investigation that led to the fraud investigation, Bourdages said the two events — and a third arson in May — are being investigated separately.

"The commonality at this time is the actual building," he said. "We're talking about two arsons in a two-month period and a very large fraud. We have yet to make a connection between them, but it's something we're keeping in mind."

No arrests have been made in connection with the suspicious fires.

Welcome to Parenting

Nova Scotia. New website will become 'main forum' for expectant families

ruth.davenport@metronews.ca

The province has launched a new website that officials say will give most families the information they want in a format they want — while freeing up resources to tailor services to parents in need of more intensive support.

Nova Scotia's chief public health officer introduced Welcome to Parenting Nova Scotia Tuesday morning, saying it provides expectant parents with consistent and credible information during pregnancy and for the year after the baby's birth.

"The program provides credible information that parents need in a convenient format they're looking for," said Dr. Robert Strang, citing feedback from focus groups. "We've also seen a decline in attendance in our prenatal classes, and many people who are coming to classes are not using the full series, they're picking and choosing information."

Registration on the site is free, and parents will have access to prenatal classes covering the three trimesters and labour and delivery. There's also a Q&A section with experts and discussion forums to connect with other parents.

"With this program, an expectant mum can learn about stages of pregnancy while riding the bus to work," said Strang. "A new mom can get

Window smashed

Early-morning gunfire rattles two neighbourhoods

Police say no one was hurt after several shots were fired at two different homes in the Halifax area.

Officers were called to the 3300 block of Federal Avenue about several gunshots being fired at a house.

Police were called at 5 a.m. Tuesday, but the actual shooting happened at about 4:20 a.m.

A window was smashed from the gunfire, but police say no one was hurt.

Investigators found several bullet casings, but don't know much else.

Police are also investigating an early-morning shooting in Spryfield on Tuesday.

Several bullet holes were noticed on a home on Cobalt Walk around 8 a.m., including on a kitchen window.

Report

Big drop in violent crime for CBRM

Violent crime in the Cape Breton Regional Municipality declined by 18 per cent in 2013, while the overall crime rate dropped by 11 per cent.

The CBRM's board of police commissioners received a report at their meeting Tuesday on the most recent figures from the Canadian Centre for Justice Statistics.

In particular, there were significant decreases in assault, harassment, threats, break-and-enter and theft in the regional municipality.

Lower-level sexual assaults did increase in 2012, but all other violent crime was down.

The crime severity index — which measures the seriousness of crime — also decreased by 18 per cent, to 60.1, which is lower than the provincial rate of 69.8 and the national average of 68.7. CAPE BRETON POST

Homebuyers find buried treasure beneath rug

When Gifford and Christine Watkins started pulling up a rug in a home they purchased in Yarmouth, they didn't know that, as they peeled away each layer, something fascinating was waiting to be found underneath.

There was no X marking the spot, but the couple says it was like finding buried treasure in their home.

Hidden beneath the floor coverings were old shipping maps and nautical charts that had been protected by layers of foam, newspapers and thin

Although the rug would have been a more modern addition, the layers underneath it weren't. And with the newspapers dating back to the early 1930s, the maps had been there for some time.

Sharon LeBlanc, Chris-

Utility agrees with critique of storm response

Post-tropical storm Arthur

Nova Scotia Power vows to address nearly every finding

Nova Scotia Power agrees with a consultant's report that recently concluded it needs more detailed weather-forecasting services and an improved website when storms hit.

The utility said Tuesday it will act on the critique of its response to post-tropical storm Arthur filed last week by Liberty Consulting Group for the Nova Scotia Utility and Review Board.

In a report filed with the board on Tuesday, Nova Scotia Power agrees to act on almost all of the 32 findings by the consultant on ways to improve its response.

The company concedes its weather modelling didn't foresee the amount of damage to power lines and says it will hire an additional forecaster.

Post-tropical storm Arthur hit the province on July 5, leaving about 245,000 customers without power. It took up to seven days for some people to see their power restored.

Nova Scotia Power says in its report that it plans to improve its website by the end of the month so that it can cope with the high demand for information that occurs during storms. It also plans to meet recommendations that it assess damaged equipment more quickly after storms hit.

The company, a subsidiary of Emera, says it concurs with the provincial Energy Department that more people qualified in damage assessment should be in areas where storms are expected to arrive.

Response times to downed trees and other problems will be improved, the report adds.

"Some elements of this recommendation can be addressed immediately, followed by continued staged improvements in the following months," it says.

Nova Scotia Power also says it will act on a recommendation that it start a scheduled program of tree trimming in some rural areas. More than 90 per cent of the outages that came after Arthur were due to trees hitting power lines and other equipment, the company says. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Concern. Rail-line checks are appropriate: Province

Transport Canada has assured that an appropriate inspection is being carried out along a rail line through northeastern Nova Scotia and Cape Breton, says the province's transportation minister.

Last month, Geoff MacLellan said he would seek assurances after a report detailed 18 key factors in last year's fatal railcar explosion in Lac-Mégantic, Que.

He also said he became aware of concerns expressed by some municipalities and members of the public after three recent derailments along the line

MacLellan said the federal department has since told him that the line operator is in compliance with regulations.

Duffy's lawyer isn't ruling out calling PM Harper as a witness

Not a 'personal or political vendetta.'

Donald Bayne insists suspended senator's upcoming trial won't turn into a sideshow

Mike Duffy's lawyer says he isn't going to rule out calling anyone — including Prime Minister Stephen Harper — as a witness in the suspended senator's upcoming trial.

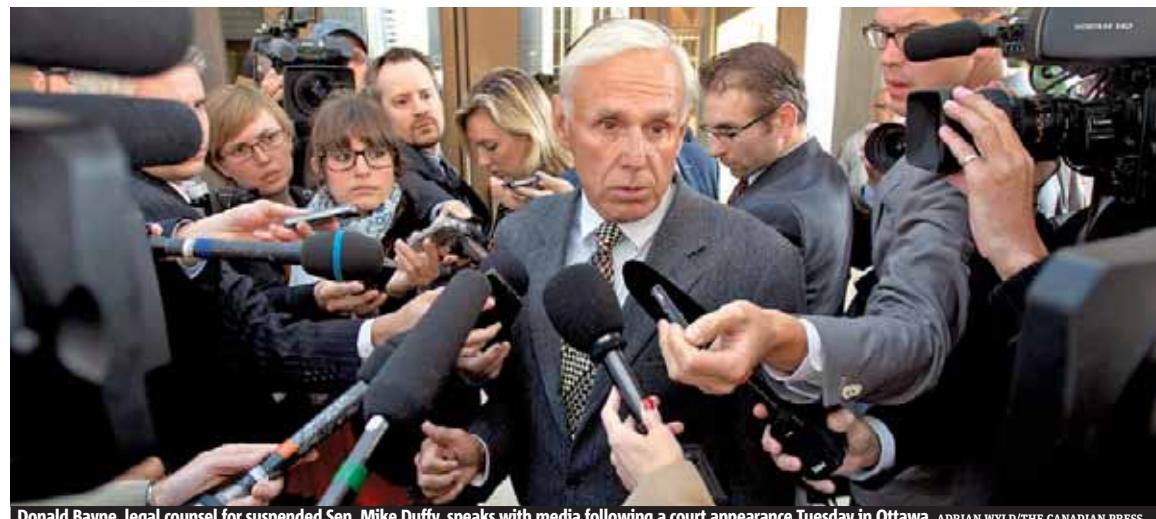

"We're considering any potential witness," Donald Bayne said Tuesday after a brief court appearance.

"At this point, it's too early to rule anything out. But please understand, this isn't being run as a personal or political vendetta."

In July, the RCMP charged the former Conservative senator with 31 counts related to his Senate expense claims.

The charges include fraud, breach of trust and bribery.

a political sideshow, Bayne insisted.

"This isn't a political case. This is a criminal case. It's going to be conducted professionally," he said. "The very strong judiciary in the Ontario Court of Justice will not allow this case to be turned into a political circus and we certainly don't intend to conduct the matter that way."

That said, Bayne acknowledged Duffy's case "absolutely" could go to trial before the next federal election, set for Oct. 19, 2015.

The trial itself could last between six and eight weeks, he said.

The senator's poor health should be taken into account when setting a trial date, Bayne added.

'A concern.' Expanding waistlines in the U.S. a dangerous trend: Study

The number of American men and women with big-bellied, apple-shaped figures — the most dangerous kind of obesity — has climbed at a startling rate over the past decade, according to a government study.

People whose fat has settled mostly around their waistlines instead of in their hips, thighs, buttocks or all over are known to run a higher risk of heart disease, diabetes and other obesity-related ailments.

Fifty-four per cent of U.S. adults have abdominal obesity, up from 46 per cent in 1999-2000, researchers reported in Wednesday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

During the 12-year period studied, the average waist size in the U.S. expanded to 38 inches for women, a gain of two inches. It grew to 40 inches for men, a one-inch increase.

"What it suggests is that even though the obesity rate may be stable, fat distribution may be changing, which would mean that we shouldn't be complacent about the plateau," said Dietz, who was not involved in the study.

By the numbers

Abdominal obesity is defined as a waistline of more than 35 inches in women and more than 40 inches in men.

about that," said Dr. William Dietz, an obesity expert formerly with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, now at George Washington University.

The expansion in waistlines came even as the overall level of obesity — as defined not by waist size but by body mass index, or BMI, a weight-to-height ratio — held steady.

"What it suggests is that even though the obesity rate may be stable, fat distribution may be changing, which would mean that we shouldn't be complacent about the plateau," said Dietz, who was not involved in the study.

Ukraine solidifies EU ties with landmark agreement

Looking west.

Ukraine has ratified a deal that will draw it closer to the European Union and its allies

Ukraine's parliament ratified a landmark association agreement with the European Union Tuesday, firmly pivoting the country toward the West and drawing a line under the issue that sparked massive protests and led to the ex-president's ouster.

In contrast to the patriotic fanfare of that vote, parliament earlier in the day went behind closed doors to approve laws granting greater autonomy for rebellious, pro-Russian regions in the east, and amnesty for many involved in the fighting.

The laws are part of a peace deal between Kyiv and the Russia-backed separatists, which includes a ceasefire that has been repeatedly violated since it was imposed on Sept. 5. But the Kyiv government has struggled to balance an outwardly pro-European stance with its attempts to end the conflict in the east by giving greater autonomy to the pro-Russian rebels, a move many in Ukraine fear will allow Russia to bolster its influence and further destabilize the region.

After the ratification vote in Kyiv, synchronized with the European parliament by video chat, members of parliament leapt to their feet to sing the Ukrainian national anthem.

"The message this sends could not be clearer: the European Parliament supports Ukraine in its European vocation," said Martin Schulz, the president of the EU Parliament. "The European Parliament will continue defending a united and sovereign Ukraine."

The agreement will lower trade tariffs between Europe and Ukraine, require Ukrainian goods to meet European regulatory standards, and force the Kyiv government to undertake major political and economic reforms. In a speech to legislators, President Petro Poroshenko called the vote a "first but very decisive step" toward bringing Ukraine fully into the European Union.

Poroshenko said those who died during protests against the ex-president and during fighting in the east "gave up their lives so that we could take a dignified place among the European family."

CRA sets up self-snitch line

The taxman wants to know if any of his own are up to no good.

That's why the Canada Revenue Agency is in the process of setting up a self-snitch line.

The so-called internal fraud and misuse reporting lines would give agency staff a way to confidentially report any concerns about their colleagues.

Three Canada Revenue Agency employees were among seven people caught up in a sweep by the Mounties earlier this year.

Charges laid include bribery of public officers, conspiracy, fraud, breach of trust by a public officer and fraud against the government. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Not a combat mission: Harper

Prime Minister Stephen Harper says 69 special forces soldiers have been sent to northern Iraq to advise and assist local forces in the fight against the militants known as the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham (ISIS).

Harper revealed the figure during a second straight day of question-period pressure from the opposition in the House of Commons.

Both the New Democrats and Liberals want Parliament to vote on the deployment, but Harper says that won't happen because it's not a combat mission.

Murder trial of Luka Rocco Magnotta. Jury selection now underway

The first day of jury selection in the murder trial of Luka Rocco Magnotta has seen five people chosen to hear the case.

Magnotta has pleaded not guilty to five charges, including first-degree murder, in connection with the May 2012 slaying and dismemberment of Jun Lin, 33, a Chinese engineering student.

Two women were selected as jurors this morning, while two men and one woman were picked this afternoon.

The process will continue until they have found 14 bilingual candidates and two alternates. Ultimately, 14 jurors will hear the case and a dozen will decide the verdict.

Roughly 300 candidates remain from the initial 1,600 summoned last week.

Tuesday's proceedings marked the first time the 32-year-old Magnotta hadn't appeared in a high-security courtroom.

Instead, the selection was done in a regular courtroom to make it easier for Magnotta to talk to his lawyer.

While the trial will take place mostly in English, many witnesses will testify in French.

Hundreds of potential jurors received exemptions last week, primarily because they said they were not proficient enough in both languages.

On Tuesday, others were also dismissed because their level of French or English comprehension was deemed inadequate.

Besides the murder charge, Magnotta has pleaded not guilty to committing an indignity to a body; publishing obscene material; criminally harassing Prime Minister Stephen Harper and other members of Parliament; and mailing obscene and indecent material.

B.C. Man who killed four women gets life without parole for 25 years

The northern B.C. man who killed four women has been given a life sentence without the chance of parole for 25 years.

Cody Legebokoff's conviction on four counts of first-degree murder automatically assigns him the life sentence.

B.C. Supreme Court Justice Glen Parrett told the court as he sentenced Legebokoff that the man fabricated the claim that unnamed drug dealers killed the women.

Parrett said that the murders were not the actions of a simple killer but of something infinitely worse.

A jury convicted the 24-year-old last week of killing Loren Leslie, Jill Stuchenko, Cynthia Mass and Natasha Montgomery in 2009 and 2010.

Legebokoff won't be eligible for parole until November 2035. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Who will pay for 'a raging epidemic'?

Prescription painkillers.

Cash-strapped cities fighting prescription opioid abuse are trying to get the makers of these drugs to pony up

Deaths

17,000

Prescription opioid abuse is blamed for 17,000 deaths per year in the U.S., more than three times as many as either heroin or cocaine.

Some of America's largest cities are ratcheting up their criticism of prescription painkillers, blaming the industry for a wave of addiction and overdoses that have ravaged their communities and busted local budgets.

The heightened rhetoric comes as Chicago tries to recover millions in health care costs from opioid drugmakers, alleging that companies deliberately misled the public about the risks of their drugs. It's a legal strategy that could be attractive to other cash-strapped cities, but one that experts say will face major hurdles in court.

On Tuesday, health commissioners from Chicago, New York and Boston came to Washington to lobby Congress and the White House on efforts to combat prescription opioid abuse, which is blamed for 17,000 deaths per year in the U.S. — more than three times as many as those due to either heroin or cocaine.

"This is a raging epidemic, and we are feeling the brunt of it in big cities across the country," Dr. Bechara Choucair, Chicago's health commissioner, said in an interview with the Associated Press.

Chicago's lawsuit, filed in July, alleges that five pharmaceutical companies deceptively marketed their drugs to treat long-term, non-cancer pain, even though that use was "unsupported by science." The allegations place the city at the centre of a national debate over the appropriate use of opioids, which are frequently prescribed to treat common conditions like arthritis and back pain. ## Tim Hortons, Burger King. Fast-food deal a slow process

Tim Hortons executives spent nearly six months negotiating the $11-billion US takeover deal with Burger King, a process that saw the American company increase its offer for the coffee chain three times.

Documents filed with regulators on Tuesday illustrated lengthy talks that began last March with a suggestion to billionaire investor Warren Buffet, and soon brought Tim Hortons CEO Marc Caira into the mix through a conversation over dinner.

Within a few weeks, Burger King had submitted its first official offer for the Canadian company at $73 per share.

Over the coming months, the burger company's majority owner, 3G Capital, along with Burger King and Buffet's Berkshire Hathaway Inc., agreed to increase their offer, encouraged that plans by Tim Hortons to become more competitive in the quick-service food market would push its stock higher and grow its quarterly results.

Burger King's offer first rose to $78 per share in May and by June had jumped again to $82.50. THE CANADIAN PRESS

YOU'VE GOT KNEEDS, AMIRITE?

So WestJet is now going to charge $25 to lose, er, transport your bag to your destination.

If you're surprised, welcome to modern travel, where the airline industry does everything it can to take the miracle out of flight.

You already have to pay for a blanket and a pillow, so the real surprise is that it took so long for the airline to charge for basic baggage.

It's all part of the exercise in extreme endurance that flying economy has become. Unless you're prepared to pay a premium, you end up in cattle class: Sandwiched in a tight row four across, and the object is to somehow survive by fighting off the other guy's elbow or the oblivious recliner in the seat in front of you.

The seat recliner thing is perhaps the most humiliating and frustrating part of flying. Back at the dawn of discount fares, airlines began cutting back on leg room and stuffing more seats into the cabin. Nevertheless, most of them still allow seats to recline, which is fine for the person doing the reclining, but the passenger being reclined upon ends up having less room than a roasting chicken in a factory farm.

JUST SAYIN'
Paul Sullivan

Seat wars have become, according to CNN, No. 1 and No. 2 on the list of the Top 20 causes of air rage. No. 2: reclining the seat; No. 1: kicking the back of the reclined seat in a fit of fury. A poll in the London Daily Telegraph showed that 70 per cent of the 18,000 respondents were in favour of banning reclining seats.

Some frequent flyers have become so desperate, they've forked over $21.95 to purchase something called the Knee Defender, a pair of clips that attach to the chair-back table and block the seat in front of you from leaning into your face. Of course, they are illegal on most airlines, including WestJet and Air Canada.

The Knee Defender is also banned on United Airlines, but that didn't prevent some guy from deploying his earlier this month on a United flight from Newark to Denver. He got a glass of water thrown in his face for his trouble, and the plane had to make the dreaded "unscheduled landing."

The inventor of the Knee Defender, a tall guy from Washington, says the publicity has turbocharged the sales of the device, but he still can't afford to fly first-class.

Why do airlines continue to allow seats to recline when it's so obviously the last straw for many fed-up flyers? Is it simply the sole remaining creature comfort that hasn't been eliminated—but give them time—or is it something more diabolical? Because, the airlines are quick to point out, there is a solution—on the other side of the first- or business-class curtain:

- One-way Vancouver to Toronto, economy—$550;
- One-way Vancouver to Toronto, leg room—$1,736.

I suppose you could always try the Knee Defender.

'Till drones do us part

Drone Wedding challenges public to think critically about surveillance, strikes

The artists of Public Studio are no strangers to examining difficult world issues in their art.

Elle Flanders' and Tamira Sawatzky's projects include the ongoing documentation of disappearing Palestinian villages (What Isn't There) and juxtaposing footage of protests from around the world, including the G20 protests in Canada (Kino Pravda 3G).

Their latest project again connects the global with the local.

The two researched drone killings carried out at weddings in places such as Pakistan and Yemen, then chose to explore what it's like to live under surveillance by staging a wedding in Toronto, filmed entirely by CCTV cameras and drones. "We decided to kind of turn the lens on ourselves here and look at what it feels like to be targeted," said Sawatzky.

The result is Drone Wedding, a video installation where a universally joyous occasion is transformed into a place of paranoia, provoking the viewer to think about our own government's complicity in drone strikes and the growing presence of surveillance in our society. EMINA GAMULIN/METRO

Enter the maze, if you dare

No way out. The Maze Runner is just the latest film to employ such a sinister puzzle as plot point

Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

Moviemakers have been using mazes to amaze audiences for years.

Giant labyrinthine puzzles are almost as old as mankind: Prehistoric mazes were built as traps for malevolent spirits, while in medieval times the labyrinth represented a path to God. But recently, the idea of people struggling through a complicated network of paths has made for some striking visuals in movies.

This weekend, The Maze Runner sets much of its action inside a gigantic maze where frightening mechanical monsters called Grievers wander, tormenting Thomas (Dylan O'Brien) as he navigates the maze to pick up clues that help him piece together memories of his past.

The sci-fi story is just the latest to feature a maze as a major plot point, but just as Labyrinth's Sarah (Jennifer Connolly) is warned, "nothing is as it seems" in these movie puzzles.

Remember Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire? Like Thomas in The Maze Runner, the boy wizard has to make it through a maze (in this instance to find the Triwizard Cup), but instead of fighting magical creatures, this hedge maze is magical; shape shifting to make the journey extra difficult.

The 1972 horror film Tales from the Crypt contained an even more sinister maze.

Made up of five stories, the film culminated with the tale of a labyrinth told with razor-sharp wit. Set in a home for the blind, the patients get even with the institute's cruel director by placing him in the centre of a maze of narrow corridors lined with razor blades.

It's a cutting edge story, that, according to besthorrormovies.com "rivals the 'death traps' of Saw and 'tortures' of Hostel while only showing a single small cut of the flesh."

In The Shining, the axe-wielding father Jack Torrance (Jack Nicholson) chases his son Danny (Danny Lloyd) through the Overlook Hotel's hedge maze. The quick-thinking boy escapes by retracing his steps, confusing his maniacal dad.

The documentary Room 237 offers up a number of interpretations of what the maze and Danny's escape represents.

One theory suggests it reflects Greek hero Theseus' slaying of the Minotaur and escape from the labyrinth, while another speculates it's a metaphor for conquering repression. Whatever the sub-text, it remains one of director Stanley Kubrick's most tense scenes.

And finally, Francis Ford Coppola's version of Dracula sees Lucy (Sadie Frost) sleep-walking through a garden maze, chased by Dracula (Gary Oldman) in wolfman form while Pan's Labyrinth features a maze as a place of safety for Ofelia (Ivana Baquero) to evade her attacker.

Maria Aragon calls opportunity to sing at museum's opening ceremony 'an honour'

It's been three years since 11-year-old Winnipegger Maria Aragon uploaded a stripped-down, piano version of Born This Way and caught the attention of the song's artist, Lady Gaga.

The resulting YouTube brouhaha — Aragon's version has more than 50 million views and the pint-sized singer got to sing the song on stage with Gaga in Toronto — has led Aragon to a record deal, touring opportunities, numerous appearances locally and internationally, and now to the Canadian Museum for Human Rights.

Now 14, Aragon will be the youngest singer to perform at the national museum's opening ceremonies in Winnipeg on Friday.

While she won't reveal what song she's singing Friday, she said she hopes Canada is impressed.

"There's only three performers for that morning," she said. "I'm just so honoured to be one of them. Hopefully I'll just give a performance ... that will make Winnipeg proud."

The opening ceremonies are being broadcast live, but the thought of millions of people watching her makes her more excited than nervous, she said.

Aragon said she thinks she was asked to perform thanks to her rich Filipino-Canadian cultural heritage, her age and her dedication to various charities, including Typhoon Haiyan relief.

"I know I'm representing youth," said Aragon. "I'm performing because I am younger, but I can also make a difference."

The CMHR opening ceremonies will be broadcast live Friday morning at 9:15 ET.

Long list announced

Giller Prize doubles award purse

The Scotiabank Giller Prize has announced its 2014 long list — and says it is doubling the amount of cash it awards.

The prize purse will increase to $140,000, with $100,000 to the winner and $10,000 to each finalist.

Twelve titles made the long list, including books by Miriam Toews, David Bezmogis and Shani Mootoo. They were chosen from 161 books submitted by 63 publishers.

This year's jury panel consists of Canadian author Shauna Singh Baldwin, British novelist Justin Cartwright, and American writer Francine Prose.

The Scotiabank Giller Prize will air on CBC-TV on Nov. 10.

Others on the long list include Frances Itani, Padma Viswanathan and Heather O'Neill.

The complete long list can be found at: scotiabankgillerprize.ca.

Metro World News in Hollywood

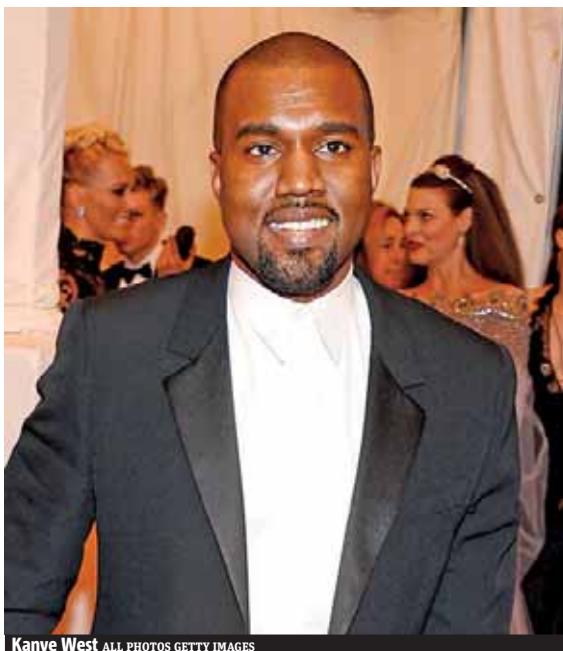

If you interviewed Robin Thicke last year and felt like you were doing all the heavy lifting, there's a reason for that. In a deposition for the lawsuit alleging he and Pharrell ripped off Marvin Gaye for the hit Blurred Lines, Thicke says he "had a drug and alcohol problem for like he's trying to dump everything on Pharrell. "I was high on Vicodin and alcohol when I showed up at the studio," Thicke says of the song's creation. "I wanted to be more involved than I actually was by the time, nine months later, it became a huge hit and I wanted credit. So I started kind of convincing myself that I was a little more part of it than I was ... But the reality is, is that Pharrell had the beat and he wrote almost every single part of the song." There's a joke in here somewhere about Thicke taking advantage of himself while he was wasted, though I like to think I'm better than that. But he knows he wants it.

School's out for Minaj: Alma mater says 'No' to Nicki

Nicki Minaj (Fiorella H. LaGuardia High School class of 2000) was looking forward to visiting her former school and meeting with current students, but the institution said "No, thanks" — a slight Minaj took quite personally. "I wanted to go back to my HS and speak to the students but the new principal declined. No need for me to inspire them, I guess," Minaj tweeted. "I guess I'm not good enough." But before this pity party really gets going, let's check in with the school itself. Officials say Minaj is leaving out one key detail. "The fact is that Ms. Minaj was told by the NYC Department of Education that she would not be allowed to enter the school with a television crew," a letter sent by the school to parents reads. "The DOE has policies in place to protect the privacy and security of all its students."

How-to

Never overpack your bag

1. Check the weather forecast carefully and pack appropriately.
2. If everything in your suitcase matches, you can mix that up for days.
3. Versatile neutrals can be dressed up with colourful accessories that weigh much less.
4. Pack a few items on their last legs. Wear and toss.
5. Pack miniature toiletries and slim down your kit with products that do double-duty (moisturizer with sunscreen, shampoo with conditioner).
6. Make sure at least one pair of shoes is waterproof. Do you need five pairs of shoes? No.

Finding joie de vivre from a bicycle

Quebec tours.

La belle province offers stunning trails

Quebec has over 5,000 kilometres of bike-friendly roads and trails in its Route Verte (Green Way) cycling network and selecting which segments to ride can be bewildering. One no-fail route is to follow the food. Over two weeks, you can cycle two separate sections of Route Verte: the 256-kilometre circuit around Lac-Saint-Jean, and a collection of country lanes and bike paths on the eastern shore of the St. Lawrence between sunset-kissed Kamouraska and the Gaspé Peninsula.

Veloroute des Bleuets

Stitched together from bike trails, country byways, village pathways and occasional paved shoulders, this is a beautiful ride along a lake so big it resembles the sea. Cyclists on Veloroute des Bleuets are treated to candy for all of the senses — the sight and sound of waterfalls, the crispness of the air, the tiny taste explosions of those wild blueberries. People generally take three to five days to circle the lake. The longer the trip, the more time to see places such as Zoo Sauvage, where great wild spaces are given to animals, and Val-Jalbert, a historical 1920s paper mill town dominated by a towering waterfall, illuminated at night in changing colours.

St. Lawrence

A nearly three-hour drive places you in the commanding Saguenay fjords and town of Tadoussac, a playground for hikers, whale-watchers, kayakers, nature lovers, artists and cyclists. Then it's 90 minutes by car ferry to the St. Lawrence's eastern shore, land of world-renowned sunsets, wild rosehip bushes, fragrant bakeries and more great biking. Over five days, these proved among the best in a series of day rides: a loop in magnificent Parc Bic, where seals sun on rocks; village lanes and Route 132 from Notre-Dame-du-Portage to Saint-André; and a trail between La Pocatière and Saint-Roch-des-Aulnaies. You can't go wrong on this route. Especially when you end up for the night in that little chocolate factory, Auberge La Fée Gourmande.

Trending now: Warsaw

The capital of Poland is currently enjoying a bit of a resurgence, attracting visitors buoyed by both budget-friendliness and renewed energy. The birthplace of Chopin, whose music is celebrated all over town, Warsaw is teeming with carefully restored buildings and monuments, lush parks and palaces, new galleries and old museums. And when the New Town dates from the 14th century, you've got some serious history and rebuilding going on. (Old Town is from the 13th century.) Be sure to stop in at the Wilanów Palace, the 17th-century Lazienki Królewski Park and Palace complex and the Museum of the History of the Polish Jews, which just opened last year. ### New Dutch route celebrates liberating times

ON THE MOVE
Loren Christie
life.metronews.ca

As a Dutch-Canadian, I have always been proud of the tight bond between Canada and the Netherlands, a country that largely credits Canadians for their liberation from Germany at the end of the Second World War. As personal memories fade, Europe's new Liberation Route aims to keep the history of that period alive.

I recently toured the Dutch section of the Liberation Route. It is not an A to Z path that one follows, but rather a smattering of significant sites from war cemeteries to museums and monuments concentrated in the provinces of Gelderland and North-Brabant.

Near the town of Arnhem, the Groesbeek War Cemetery is the final resting place for

2,617 Canadians. The immaculately kept grounds are an incredible reminder of the sacrifice our country made. Chris Karamitsos, a retired firefighter and paramedic from Cornwall, Ont. was visiting the graves of soldiers from his hometown regiment. After placing small stones brought from Ontario in front of the headstones, he explained, "I got to have my life because of them. They deserve a piece of home."

The Airborne Museum Hartenstein in the town of Oosterbeek is housed in the former headquarters of the British airborne division. Like many museums, it offers a variety of exhibits but the underground airborne experience, which puts you in the midst of the battle of Arnhem, is not to be missed.

Throughout the region visitors will find large boulders adorned with remembrance plaques. There are audio stories associated with each plaque, which can be accessed through a free app. Gijs Nu-man, a leader in the Dutch Resistance credited with saving untold lives, is the subject

School can be draining. It can be overwhelming and exhausting and sometimes, flat-out boring.

Getting involved in extracurricular activities can give you a break from the textbooks and feed your brain in a whole new way. But there are plenty of other benefits to signing up for an on-campus pastime.

Discover what you love to do
Extra-curricular activities can help you find passion — especially if you're enrolled in an exceptionally draining academic program.

They're also a way to force yourself to commit. Allotting time to play sports or write or sing may not be something you'd otherwise prioritize unless you had a reason — and a commitment — to do so.

Meet new people

Getting involved in activities outside your normal social circle introduces you to people you may not otherwise meet.

You develop a whole new slew of friends and naturally bond with these people because you have something in common — and it's something the other people in your life likely can't relate to.

You bond over memorizing lines; struggling through swim practice; pulling all-nighters at the school paper. You share a big part of your life with a group of people. You get used to seeing them and spending time with them.

They end up knowing more about your personal life than your closest friends — and you come to rely on them in multiple aspects of your life.

Get out into the garden and be sure to pick those fresh ripe tomatoes.

The large beefsteak tomatoes are perfect for sandwiches and salads but those ripe elongated plum tomatoes have fewer seeds and a meaty texture, which makes them perfect for soups and sauces.

Here is an easy tomato soup that is perfect to enjoy with homemade biscuits.

It doesn't take too long to prepare, either. While the soup is simmering you can make the biscuits.

Tomato Soup

1. In saucepan, heat oil over medium heat and cook shal-

Ingredients

Soup

- 2 tsp (10 ml) canola oil
- 2 shallots, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 tsp (5 ml) each chopped fresh rosemary and thyme
- 3 cups (750 ml) chopped fresh ripe plum tomatoes
- 3 cups (750 ml) vegetable or chicken broth
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) all purpose flour
- Pinch pepper
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) 1% milk

Biscuits

- 2-1/2 cups (635 ml) all-purpose flour
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) granulated sugar
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) baking powder
- 1/2 tsp (2 ml) salt
- 3/4 cup (175 ml) butter, cubed
- 1 cup (250 ml) milk (approx.)

lots, garlic, rosemary and thyme for about 3 minutes or until softened. Add tomatoes and cook, stirring for about 5 minutes or until juices start to appear.

2. Using potato masher crush tomatoes. Add stock and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer for 20 minutes.
3. Using immersion blender or pour into blender and purée until smooth. Return to clean saucepan. Whisk flour and pepper into milk. Stir into soup and bring to a simmer for 5 minutes or until thickened slightly.

Biscuits

1. In a large bowl, combine flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Using pastry blender or fingertips cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Gradually add enough of the milk, stirring with fork to make soft, slightly sticky dough.
2. On lightly floured surface, knead dough gently about 10 times. Pat dough into 1-inch thick round. Using floured cookie cutter, cut out rounds.

3. Brush tops of biscuits with milk. Bake in 425 F (220 C) oven for about 12 minutes or until golden.

Place on ungreased baking sheet. Gather scraps and cut out more rounds.

Your Neighbourhood: FALL RIVER

Wednesday, September 17, 2014

Protecting the environment

Growth. Councillor says development must honour Fall River's natural beauty

TOM
For Metro

Barry Dalrymple admits he is a little biased when it comes to the beauty of the Fall River community. After all, the retired RCMP officer, who now represents the area in Halifax Regional Council, grew up here.

"The sheer beauty of the lakes and rivers make it one of the prettiest places I've ever been in my life," he said. "And with 33 years in the RCMP, I lived in a lot of places."

Preserving that beauty is paramount, says Dalrymple — the rapid growth the area is experiencing must take place in an intelligent fashion to protect the environment and the lifestyle that Fall River residents have come to love.

He has been a strong opponent of a plan to build a quarry in the area and is the chair of HRM's environmental committee. He has also taken part in a six-year visioning process for the community designed to protect zoning in Fall River.

"The visioning process was very involved," he said. "The result is about 250 pages of zoning regulations that set out exactly what the community will allow. It means that if business people and developers want to come into the community and set up a business, they know what they can expect right up front."

Endangering wells

"Everyone is on a well and septic system. We're worried that major blasting for a quarry could change the way the groundwater flows in Fall River and endanger those wells."

Barry Dalrymple, HRM councillor for Fall River

Dalrymple is also leading the fight against a proposed quarry that would be built in the area between Aerotech Business Park and Miller Lake — a project that has been rejected by the province's Utility and Review Board and is now in the appeals courts.

"We have no city water or sewer service in Fall River," he said. "Everyone is on a well and septic system. We're worried that major blasting for a quarry could change the way the groundwater flows in Fall River and endanger those wells."

While there are many things that Dalrymple appreciates about his hometown, he says it is the community's spirit of volunteerism that truly makes Fall River stand out.

"I've never seen it like this in any other community that I've lived in across Canada. Everyone in Fall River really wants to help out, to make their community a better place."

Centre a community gem

Gordon Snow Centre.
Programming is popular among youth and adults alike

TOM MASON

When it opened in 2008, the Gordon R. Snow Community Centre had to deal with a few opening day bugs — most notably a water shortage problem and some issues with an electronic sign mounted outside the building. Hardly surprising, given the ambitious nature of project that features a LEED-certified, environmentally friendly building, a state-of-the-art architectural design, and 38,000 square feet of convertible indoor recreational space.

Six years later, everything is running like clockwork, and the centre has become a huge resource for the Fall River community, said Tracy Burns-Gagnon, the facility's community recreation co-ordinator.

"The centre is packed in the afternoons," she said. "George P. Vanier Junior High is right across the street and the students come with their rackets and their fitness gear. It's fantastic to see how many local kids make use of it on a regular basis."

The students are taking advantage of a free, after-school drop-in program offered by the centre, just one of dozens of programs available for children, youth, and adults alike.

"We have everything from tai chi to craft programs to belly dancing classes," Burns-Gagnon said. "We have lots of activities for all age groups."

A walking trail and a large gazebo on the community centre grounds are also well used.

"We have running and cycling groups that meet regularly at the gazebo. It's a very popular part of the facility."

Sports. Residents stay busy with recreational options

HRM Councillor Barry Dalrymple says Fall River's commitment to sports just might be the community's best-kept secret.

"We've got huge support for sports groups here," he said. "We've got 500 kids playing baseball. We've got 400 paddlers at Cheema Aquatic Club."

Cheema is the biggest story — a sprint canoe and kayak racing club located on Lake Thomas that develops young athletes and sponsors local regattas and paddling events. It's Fall River's other well-kept secret, Dalrymple said.

"Not too many people know that Cheema has won the Canadian paddling championships for three years in a row."

Other recreational opportunities in the Fall River area include two popular provincial parks — Oakfield and Laurie — along with hiking trails and boating opportunities.

The community is also home to two 18-hole championship golf courses — Ashburn and Oakfield. Ashburn, known as New Ashburn by club members, is one of two courses the Ashburn Golf Club owns.

Dalrymple says HRM needs to follow up on the enthusiasm that Fall River residents show for sports and recreation by developing more facilities in the community.

"We have the volunteers and the players, but we don't have enough playing fields right now. That's something the city needs to work on."

Restoring canal a project for all

Shubenacadie. The canal, which hasn't been used in nearly 150 years, could rival the Rideau Canal

For Metro

Restoring the Shubenacadie Canal system that runs through Fall River has long been tossed around as a potential historical and recreational project for the community.

The canal has the potential to rival the Rideau Canal that runs through Ottawa, say its boosters, if it could somehow be restored to its old glory. But one expert says the cost of the job would likely be large.

Bernie Hart is a canal historian and a longtime board member with the Shubenacadie Canal Commission. He says that while it might be feasible to restore the canal in stages, a complete restoration of the system's locks — that have sat idle for almost 150 years — would be hugely expensive. "It would cost many millions of dollars," he said.

Along with the cost of restoring the ancient locks, there are major water flow issues involved. At 31 metres above sea level, Lake Charles in Dartmouth is the summit lake in the system.

At its northern end, its water pours into Lake William to ultimately feed the Shubenacadie River. Its southern end flows back into Lake MacMac through Port Wallace. In the days when the canal operated, engineers replenished the water in the lake that flowed through the locks on either end by bringing it down from Lake Loon via a dam that controlled the flow.

"That would be difficult to do now," Hart said. "Lake Loon is part of the city's water supply and they would never allow water to be taken out of it to operate a recreational canal."

But Hart is optimistic. Potentially, the restoration could be done in bite-sized pieces, with one lock at a time brought back to life over a generation or two. The nearly restored Lock 5 is the best candidate to be the first operating lock in the system — a project that would open up Lake Fletcher in Fall River to Grand Lake.

Museum a labour of love

TOM
For Metro

The 1941 Ford one-ton fire truck in David Dodsworth's garage hasn't looked this good for a long time. Dodsworth dragged the dilapidated vehicle out of the woods on a Porter's Lake backlot and has spent months restoring it to close to its original condition.

The truck fought its last fire in the early 1970s. After that it made regular appearances in parades and was loaned out to the Shriners for a time before being finally abandoned by its owners at the Bedford Volunteer Fire Department. "I actually drove it in a few parades myself," he said.

Now, Dodsworth is working day and night to finish restoring the vehicle in time for the Bedford fire station's 75th anniversary celebration on Sept. 27. The fire truck will eventually end up at the Regional Firefighters Interpretation Centre and Museum in Fall River.

Dodsworth is the president of the Firefighters Centre. He and a group of friends — many of them retired firefighters — founded it 2000 as a way to showcase the rich history of volunteer firefighting in the region. For years the group searched for a home, finally finding it in 2012, when decommissioned Fire Station 45, in the heart of Fall River, became available.

Today, the museum serves as a showcase for a growing collection of firefighting equipment and artifacts, including several fire trucks, fire helmets, breathing apparatuses, hose reels, old photographs, and much more. There are tributes to a number of landmark events in the Halifax area including the Halifax Explosion and the first all African-Canadian fire station in Canada.

Real estate booming in Fall River

"Minutes from the city. Miles from ordinary."

The phrase serves as the motto for the popular Fall River business Inn on the Lake, but it could easily describe the community that surrounds it. Fall River sits at the nexus of urban and rural — the perfect juxtaposition of everything that suburban HRM has to offer. Today, the community that sits along the shore of the Dartmouth Lakes and the Shubenacadie Canal system has become one of the most attractive places to live in the city.

It happened almost overnight. For nearly a century, the area known as Fall River was cottage country — a quiet respite just a short car trip from downtown Halifax. During the 1970s, that began to change. Subdivisions began opening up all around Lake Fletcher and all along the Fall River Road to Windsor Junction. The old gravel roads disappeared under asphalt, and by the early 1990s Fall River had become a modern community.

The last 20 years has seen phenomenal growth with the development of a number of large upscale housing subdivisions, including Schwarzwald, Capilano, Fall River Village, Kinloch Estates, and St. Andrews West. Schwarzwald was the oldest of these developments. Recently, Schwarzwald developers started work on a new phase called Schwarzwald Heights.

Jury to decide if Stewart will face charges in death

The decision of whether to charge three-time NASCAR champion Tony Stewart in the August death of a fellow driver at a sprint car race in upstate New York will be up to a grand jury.

Ontario County District Attorney Michael Tantillo said Tuesday he made the decision to present the case to a grand jury after reviewing evidence collected by sheriff's investigators. Tantillo could have determined there was not enough evidence to support charges and dropped the case, but instead announced his decision more than a month after Stewart's car struck and killed Kevin Ward Jr. at a dirt-track race on Aug. 9.

In a statement, Stewart said he respects the time and effort authorities have spent "investigating this tragic accident."

Orioles celebrate winning AL East

MLB. Baltimore handles Toronto for second straight night to clinch division title

Champagne was spraying all around him, and Dan Duquette couldn't help but laugh at the mayhem he helped create.

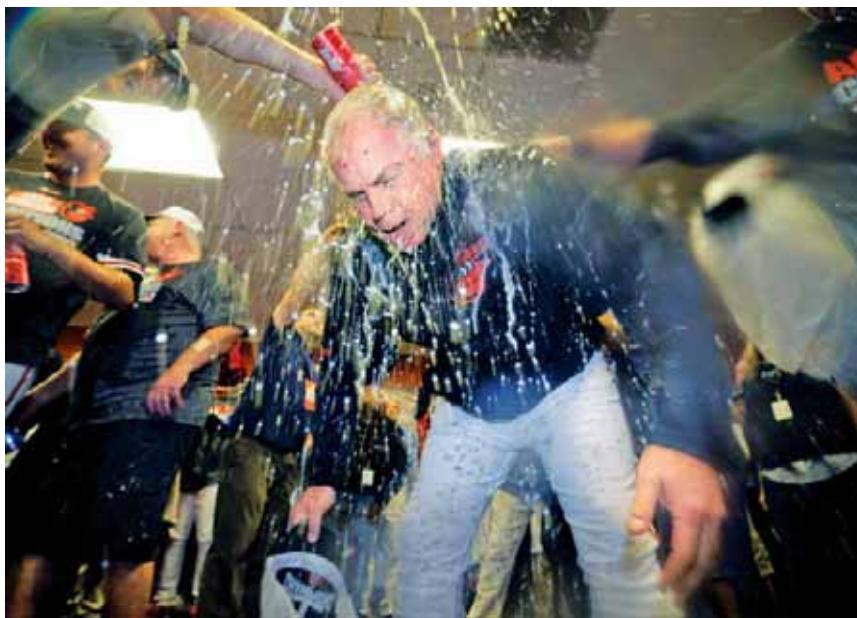

The Orioles clinched their first AL East title since 1997 by beating Toronto 8-2 Tuesday night, and Duquette was right in the middle of a long overdue celebration in the Baltimore clubhouse.

"The guys are having a great time, and they earned it," said Duquette, the team's executive vice-president of baseball operations. "We've got some more work to do, and these guys know it, but congratulations to them on the division crown. They did a great job."

With their ninth win in 10 games, the Orioles clinched their second playoff appearance in three years following a run of 14 consecutive losing seasons.

After the final out, the Orioles converged behind second base. Fireworks soared in the outfield, while streamers and confetti sprayed throughout the boisterous crowd of 35,279.

The party continued in the clubhouse, where players wore goggles and smiles while covered in champagne and beer.

It was Baltimore's ninth AL East title, but only its second since 1983, when the Orioles last won the World Series.

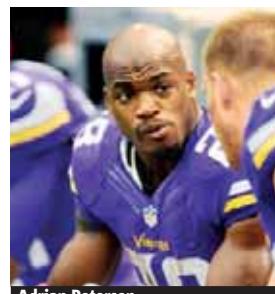

The Orioles got all the runs they would need early. Steve Pearce provided the Orioles with a 3-2 lead with a three-run drive off Drew Hutchison (10-12) in the first inning. Jimmy Paredes hit a solo shot in the second to make it 4-2.

In the other clubhouse, the Blue Jays bemoaned their role as the catalyst to the celebration.

"Watching what we had to watch was probably the worst thing you can experience as a player," Hutchison said. "It's something you never want to have to experience again. We have some games left here. We know what the odds are. We just have to win as much as we can. We still have a lot to play for with our pride."

Peterson's popularity falls with child abuse charge

For as long as he's been in the NFL, Adrian Peterson has been one of the most popular and most marketable stars in the league, an approachable superstar with the kind of inspirational comeback story that made him an endorser's dream.

Now that he is facing a felony charge of child abuse for spanking his four-year-old son with a wooden switch, the Minnesota Vikings running back is facing criticism like he never has before. In the wake of the Vikings' decision to allow Peterson to play while the legal process plays out in Texas, stores are pulling Peterson merchandise from their shelves.

"It is an awful situation," Gov. Mark Dayton said Tuesday.

"Whipping a child to the extent of visible wounds, as has been alleged, should not be tolerated in our state. Therefore, I believe the team should suspend Mr. Peterson, until the accusations of child abuse have been resolved by the criminal justice system."

Nike pulled Peterson jerseys from its stores at the Mall of America in Bloomington and in outlet malls in Eagan and Albertville.

Less style, more substance

Review. Redesigned Hyundai Sonata swaps its exterior swoops for better handling and a much-improved ride

Back in 2009, the sixth-generation Sonata rocked the midsize segment with killer looks and great value. Sonata has been a major seller ever since, hanging in there with the likes of Honda Accord, Ford Fusion and Toyota Camry.

For the seventh-generation 2015 Sonata, Hyundai has dialed back the looks a bit. Mostly, it lost that dramatic slope line at the rear of the cabin, which made it look very coupe-like.

In the meantime, its competitors have seriously jazzed up their content and visuals — notably Mazda6 and Fusion.

All this makes Sonata a slightly different proposition than it was last year, and playing to different strengths.

It's more of an all-rounder, with a much-improved ride and better handling. The new chassis feels more secure and capable, and the electric power steering dials in more feel.

The new exterior shape improves outward visibility and rear-seat ingress and egress.

As before, the rear-seat area is spacious, and it's one of the few midsize models that offers optional rear-seat heating. For kids back there on cold mornings, those seats are, as Ron Burgundy would say, "kind of a big deal."

The powertrain has some tweaks, but is basically carried over from last year, so you get two choices of four-cylinder power (2.4-litre or 2.0-litre turbo), both mated to a traditional 6-speed automatic, for that familiar shift feel and performance. A hybrid version is also available.

My test vehicle was a Sport model with the Tech package ($30,199), with the standard 2.4-litre four. The 2.4 comes with direct injection, DOHC, aluminum block and head, and continuously variable valve timing.

With 185 hp and 178 lb.-ft. of torque on tap, it is very similar in refinement, power, fuel efficiency and on-the-road performance to the other big fours out there in this segment.

At the wheel, the Sonata has an easygoing personality, with very intuitive and easy-to-use controls and infotainment paraphernalia.

The Tech package showed off many new premium features, which are more-or-less expected in this midsize class, including an 8-inch touch screen with navigation and rear-view camera, Bluetooth, blind-spot detection, rear park assist and a heated steering wheel.

Limited and Ultimate models are where you find the top-shelf technology, such as lane-departure warning and assist, front collision warning system, adaptive cruise control, electric parking brake and ventilated front seats.

The new Sonata will surely continue to win its share of fans in this very competitive family sedan segment.

Driving Force.

Everyone sharing the road must be aware of the dangers cyclists face from cars, trucks and each other

drive@metronews.ca

Cycling is great exercise and a viable means of transportation, but it can also be dangerous when vehicle traffic is part of the mix. It's important for everyone to take an active role in bicycle safety.

"We always tell motorists that they have metal around them, while cyclists are vulnerable, but cyclists should be good road-sharing partners as well," says Teresa Di Felice, director of government and community relations for CAA South Central Ontario. "We want to mitigate conflict and get to safety."

It's important for cyclists to think about safety and follow the rules of the road, since drivers can't predict what cyclists are going to do. This includes riding with the flow of traffic (unless there's a bike-specific contraflow lane), obeying traffic signals, and making eye contact with motorists at intersections.

Likewise, drivers need to give cyclists at least a metre of space when passing them, check for cyclists alongside when making right-hand turns, and look for oncoming bicycles when making left-hand turns. Drivers also need to stay farther back when driving behind a cyclist, since a bicycle can stop much faster than a car.

Cyclists have to use extra caution around big trucks, which have large blind spots despite their multiple mirrors.

"Cyclists are flexible and can get into smaller spaces, but that space between a curb and a car is different when it's a curb and a truck," Di Felice says.

"We tell cyclists to stay back behind the truck, to let

Safety tips

- Distracted cycling is dangerous, and cyclists shouldn't phone or text while riding, or wear earbuds that could drown out traffic noise.
- To avoid "dooring" cyclists, drivers should open doors with their right hands, which forces them to look behind them.
- CAA.ca offers free tips on bicycle safety, as well as CAA's Bike Assist program for members.

it go and make its turn."

Even though truck drivers make wide right turns, the trailer will always turn sharper than the truck, and a cyclist waiting at the curb could be crushed under the trailer's rear wheels before he even realizes he's in danger.

Di Felice also warns that while cars should move out to pass cyclists, trucks can't always do this.

"There's a responsibility for the trucker to give cyclists space, but they can't easily weave out, especially if it's uphill. We encourage truckers to do what they can, but cyclists must realize that no one's trying to be aggressive, and they can't manoeuvre a truck the way they would a car."

Cyclists should also make themselves visible with lights or reflective clothing, especially at dusk, when those on bikes may still think it's bright outside but motorists have less visibility through their windshields.

If one cyclist in a group has the brightest lights or clothing, put that person at the back of the pack, if possible.

"Cycling isn't a fad, and we're seeing it increase," Di Felice says. "It's important to address this, and our role is to look at what needs to be done."

Over a mountain

Suzuki V-Strom. Trim and slim bike makes smooth work of a tour up the Coquihalla and along the Sowaqua

MARISSA BAECKER
drive@metronews.ca

My spirit for adventure was awakened the moment the 2014 Suzuki V-Strom 1000 SE was unloaded from the trailer — bright red and adventure-ready. The road less travelled was calling my name.

The SE is ready for the long haul before your imagination can decide where to take you. It's equipped with hand guards, centre stand, side panniers and a nine-way adjustable windscreens right off the showroom floor.

I closed the pannier, plugged my cellphone into the 12-volt outlet, set the trip meter to zero and navigated the quickest way out of downtown Vancouver — intent on racking up 800 kilometres in search of the smell of fresh cedar.

The V-Strom is still tried-and-true, but it got a makeover for 2014. Changes include a redesigned fuel-injected engine with increased cooling capacity which serves up low- and mid-range torque for those tricky off-road areas; redesigned exhaust; transmission tweaks; plus a chassis and suspension upgrade. It all equates to improved stability.

Recent increased speed limits on B.C. highways showed off the V-Strom's sport handling, and the inverted front forks absorbed every slight bump.

I slipped through the gears and into sixth for a smooth ride, as the city skyline sank rapidly in my rear-view and the mountains grew taller before me.

Roaring past sprawling pastures of livestock and agriculture, my adventure mirage was intermittently halted by the offensive smell of freshly spread manure along Highway 1 through Chilliwack.

Suzuki V-Strom 1000 SE

- Price. $11,999 base, $12,999 for SE model
  - Engine. 1037-cc V-twin liquid-cooled 4-stroke
  - Weight. 228 kg
  - Features. Three-way traction control, ABS, 9-way adjustable windscreen shaped comfort seat with high-grip sidewalls carved out for optimal foot position.

Having survived the sensory assault, I resettled into the saddle just in time to enjoy the onslaught of sweeping curves on the approach into the mountains.

I was reacquainting myself with Mother Nature when Aeolus, the Greek god of wind, took over in the rocky canyons as I climbed the Coquihalla. Seemed like a good time to leave the pavement for a more sheltered route.

for a more sheltered road.

Into the woods, where trees were plentiful and campfire vapours teased their bows. The banks of Sowaqua Creek were bursting with rapidly flowing mountain runoff as I rode alongside.

I arrived in the clearing of a private canyon paradise, with its occupants lounging creekside. After a slide U-turn, I flipped on the traction control and my rear tire gripped the gravel as I headed back to the main road. I marvelled that my backside wasn't hurting after two-and-a-half hours of riding.

I marvelled that my back-side had yet to complain after 2-1/2 hours of riding. I accelerated past the coughing 18-wheeler up to the 1,728-metre Pennask Summit, where I again left the road for a descent through Bear Creek.

The sun was dipping and it wasn't long before I tested the ABS and stared down a path-crossing moose. We eyed one another until she meandered back into the brush.

This is what it's all about, I thought to myself.

Plug-in hybrid BMW sets the pace for Formula E electric racers

In a case of electric serendipity, BMW's new flagship hybrid sports car, the 2015 i8 two-seat coupe, has been named the official safety car for the low-emissions, global electric racing series, known as Formula E. The Bavarian automaker's plug-in hybrid course car was revealed at the Donington Park racing circuit in the United Kingdom, an ex-Grand Prix venue and the home base of Formula E racing. The i8 should be more than up to the task of leading racers around a circuit, says website Motor Authority, with its 1.5-litre three-cylinder turbocharged engine and two-motor electric drive system producing a combined 357 horsepower. Its top speed on electric power alone is 135 km/h.

The BMW i8 will be the official pace car for the Formula E racing series. The coupe has a combined horsepower of 357 and a top speed of 135 km/h on electric power alone. ALL STORIES AND PHOTOS FROM WHEELBASEMEDIA.COM.

Cruze Diesel sales are slow off the line

The first diesel passenger car to be sold by General Motors in almost three decades is off to a slow sales start after being available to the public for almost a full year now. From last July through June of this year, the 2014 Chevrolet Cruze Diesel sold a mere 5,974 units, or just 2 per cent of the more than 300,000 Cruze models sold over that period. The diesel Cruze hasn't yet come close to the 10 per cent sales mark suggested at its launch by former Chevy sales chief Don Johnson. The Volkswagen Jetta TDI, its closest competitor and the only other mid-size diesel-powered sedan currently on the market, sold 46,409 units over the same period.

The diesel model accounts for just 2 per cent of total Cruze sales, after a full year on the market. Chevrolet had predicted 10 per cent.

Shift points

- Toyota has been approved by Japan's Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry to manufacture and self-inspect high-pressure hydrogen tanks for fuel-cell vehicles, allowing it to manufacture tanks using in-house inspectors. Toyota says this will lead to improved manufacturing efficiency, productivity improvements and cost reductions for FCVs.
- North America's first hybrid vehicle, the Honda Insight, is no more. Neither is the company's tall subcompact wagon, the Fit EV. Honda sold 280,629 Insights globally last year — fewer than 5,000 of them in the United States.

Creative juice. Prow-like pyramid uses inductive charging for electric cars

Researchers at the Fraunhofer Institute in Germany have developed an innovative solution to recharging electric vehicles. The inductive charging system uses a portable column jutting out in front of the car.

Already found in some small home appliances, inductive charging uses electromagnetic fields to transfer energy from one source to another. One induction coil, located in the power source, creates an alternating electromagnetic field, while a second coil draws the energy from the first to recharge a battery.

The originality of the charging system created by Fraunhofer lies in the concentration of the technology needed to power a car within a relatively small yellow column that contains the stacked coils.

The energy is received by another set of coils placed just behind the vehicle's front license plate. By design, this technology is compatible with all electric vehicles, from city cars to large SUVs.

In contrast, other inductive car charging platforms rely on costly and complex underground installations, such as the ones being tested by auto makers such as Volvo.

With their compact column, the engineers promise a solution that is more economical but also more practical, as it is portable and can be used anywhere.

The system is only able to transmit 3 kilowatts, far less than wired charging stations. The technology will only be developed for the mass market if it can be produced and sold relatively cheaply. AFP

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

Your ideas may be amazing but unless you find practical ways of applying them to your everyday affairs they won't do you much good.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

The Sun in Virgo endows you not only with a positive outlook but also a willingness to take risks. Something you begin over the next few days could change your life in remarkable ways.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Not everything will go the way you want it to go today but those things which do work out right will far outrun those things which don't.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Because recent months have been hectic there were things you wanted to do but never quite got round to. Now you can begin to move in a more agreeable direction. Focus only on what makes you smile.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

The successes of recent weeks could still easily be reversed, so don't start thinking you have cracked it and no longer need to make an effort.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

The past few weeks have seen many beneficial changes in your life and before the Sun leaves your sign on the 23rd there will be more surprises.

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Mercury, the planet of the mind, in your sign makes this the ideal time to figure out what you need to change to make your life more complete.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Are you delighted with what you have achieved? Or are you saddened because you wasted so many opportunities? Either way you should not get too worked up about it.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

The way you react to problems of a partnership nature is of the utmost important today. If you criticize others too harshly then you must expect matters to most likely get worse.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Too often in the past you have been content to let life come to you, but now you must push yourself forward at every opportunity. Success comes to those who dare.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Over the next few days you should rest. When the Sun changes signs on the 23rd it will be all go again, but in a good way, so save yourself for then.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Neptune, your ruler, is linked with mind planet Mercury today, so your brain will be buzzing with ideas. For results, limit yourself to one objective.
